A Receipt for the Blind Staggers in Hogs.—A correspondent of the Michigan Farmer directs, as a remedy for this disease, to bleed them in the third wrinkle in the roof of the mouth. My practice is to throw the hog on the back and cut across the wrinkles and I never knew it to fail.

Breeding Stock.

The following very excellent remarks on breeding, by L. C. Ball, of New York, are well worthy of attention. The article appeared first in the Ohio Cultivator.

Mr. Ball says:—The experience of all herdsman and breeders, from the days of Jacob down to the present time, has only tended to one result, namely—That like produces like. On this principle have all the changes of form and habits which separate wild from domesticated races, and which characterize the numerous breeds and varieties of improved animals been made.

So well understood is this principle, that no desired property, whether of strength, speed, form, temperament, or disposition, is considered unattainable; and no fault or imperfection, but what may be eradicated, and the intelligent breeder pursues his object with a confidence of success, which the result fully justifies.

"This power of man to effect useful alterations in the animal creation," is shown by the fact that among every species of domesticated animals, there is a great number of varieties, each characterized by permanent marks and qualities, of color or form, or by the size and shape of particular organs and parts. These varieties, though differing widely in appearance, qualities and habits, are all obtained from one original stock, by the continued observation of this one principle: Of breeding from those individuals which possess the desired qualities in the highest degree, and rejecting all those in which opposite tendencies are perceptible.

If animals with short limbs are desired, then all those individuals of the species which have these parts of more than medium length are rejected; and from each successive generation, those having the shortest limbs are selected to be the parents of the proposed new variety; and thus, in no very long period the work is accomplished.

So far has practice been continued in the case of swine, that animals of that species have been bred in which the limbs were not of sufficient length to raise the body from the ground.

The passion for small heads and fine limbs is at this time so great, that animals are frequently produced in which the head is hardly large enough to perform its appropriate functions, and the limbs are unable to support for any long time, the weight of the body.

But every rule has apparent exceptions—and none more, or more fatal to the hopes of the breeder, if blindly followed, than this, that like produces like.—For instance—an animal is obtained, which combines to an eminent degree all the qualities which render the species useful; and the owner indulges the expectation, that the offspring will possess all the good qualities of the sire, and that henceforth his pastures and stables will be filled with the best and most perfect specimens of the breed. The result, however, disappoints his expectations, and leads him to doubt the correctness of the rule he has so rigidly and perseveringly followed; for not one of the progeny reaches that degree of perfection which marked the sire while more than half are below the standard of mediocrity.

How are these facts to be reconciled and principle so clearly understood as to be practically useful?

Philosophy and experience have demonstrated the fact, that animals, from the highest to the lowest, frequently resemble remote ancestors, and renewed forms that existed long before the birth of their own parents between whom and themselves, no similarity is discoverable.

Who has not seen some human individual, standing alone in the family, bearing no resemblance in feature or habits to parents, brothers or sisters; and who was evidently sent back to gather up the scattered threads of life's web among the graves of a preceding, perhaps remote generation?

The fact is very clear that animals transmit to their offspring qualities which they do not themselves exhibit, but which they have nevertheless inherited, and preserved in latent or rudimentary forms. How else can the too common and melancholy fact be explained, that those hereditary diseases which afflict one generation of the human family, pass harmlessly over the second, and break with devastating fury upon the third.

The animal, whatever traits of excellence it may possess, whose offspring exhibits defects of form and constitution, has come from an impure stock, in which the same defects were prominent; and therefore the result, though seemingly contradictory and inexplicable, is just what an intelligent observer of nature's laws might confidently predict.

If the breeder who looks with admiration upon the good points and fine appearance of an animal, could know the history of its ancestors for a dozen or twenty generations, he could much better judge of its value, and the propriety of transferring it to his own flock or herds.

Important improvements may doubtless be effected, within short periods of time; but these improvements, to become inherent, and constitute permanent and unvarying types, must be continued an unbroken succession through many generations.

Those animals, therefore, which have descended from a superior race, through a long and unbroken line of healthy ancestors, are the only reliable sources to which the breeder can resort, for preserving useful qualities already obtained, or for reaching to a higher degree of excellence.

Stroudsburg and Easton

STAGE LINES.

The Stroudsburg and Easton mail line of stages, consists of excellent four horse coaches, and leaves J. J. Postens' Indian Queen Hotel, Stroudsburg, Pa. every day (except Sundays) at 7 o'clock A. M. arriving in Easton before the departure of the cars for New York, or stages to Bethlehem and Allentown.

The following lines leave Postens' Indian Queen Hotel, Stroudsburg, Pa. every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, returning on alternate days:

A line to Port Jervis, leaving at 7 o'clock A. M. via Bushkill, Dingman's Choice and Milford. Returning, leaves Port Jervis immediately after the arrival of the morning train of cars to New York, at about 8 o'clock A. M.

A line to Mauch Chunk, leaving at 7 o'clock A. M. via Brodheadsville, where it connects with lines to Wilkes-Barre and White Haven.

A line to Scranton, leaving at 7 o'clock A. M. via Bartonsville, Tannersville, where it connects with a line to Honesdale, and connecting at Scranton with the cars for the west.

These lines hold out strong inducements to the traveling public—passing through sections of the country which are as magnificent and picturesque as any in the Union. Having provided themselves with excellent coaches, good horses, and careful drivers, they feel confident that they will be enabled to give entire satisfaction to all who will patronize them.

To which is added, receipts for the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague, for twenty-five cents a copy; six copies one dollar, will be forwarded to any part of the United States, by mail, free of postage. Address, Postage, "Box, 196 Post Office, or the Author, 38 North Seventh Street Philadelphia.

FIFTY DOLLARS FORFEIT. Dr. Hunter will forfeit $50 if failing to cure any case of secret disease that may come under his care, no matter how long standing or affecting. Either sex are invited to his Private Rooms, 38 North Seventh Street Philadelphia, without fear of interruption from other patients. Strangers and others who have been unfortunate in the selection of a Physician are invited to call.

IMPOTENCY.—Through unrestrained indulgence of the passions, by excess or self-abuse, the evils are numerous. Premature impotency, involuntary seminal discharges, wasting of the organs, loss of memory, a distaste for female society, general debility, or constitutional derangement, are sure to follow. If necessary, consult the Doctor with confidence; he offers a perfect cure.

READ AND REFLECT.—The afflicted would do well to reflect before trusting their health, happiness, and in many cases their lives, in the hands of Physicians ignorant of this class of maladies. It is certainly impossible for one man to understand all the ills the human family are subject to. Every respectable physician has his peculiar branch, in which he is more successful than his brother professors, and to that he devotes most of his time and study.

YEARS OF PRACTICE.—Exclusively devoted to the study and treatment of diseases of the sexual organs, together with ulcers upon the body, throat, nose, or legs, pains in head, or bones, mercurial rheumatism, strictures, gravel, irregularities, disease arising from youthful excesses, or impurities of the blood, whereby the constitution has become enfeebled, enables the Doctor to offer speedy relief to all who may place themselves under his care.

HORSES MADE SOUND

BY THE

Horse Owner's Secret,

Cure of Heaves,

By SIR JAMES LYNDONTON,

Principal Farrier to his Royal Highness Prince Albert.

THE great discovery contained in this little work procured Sir James his Baronetcy. It is really worth its weight in gold to all who own or use Horses. It prescribes a certain and positive cure for Heaves which any person can prepare. The remedy is better and cheaper than any advertised Heave Powder, and is perfectly safe, as any one can know who tries it. Horse owners know that many a valuable Horse loses half its price by this prevalent disease. The remedy prescribed in this work will cure him and increase his market value, besides relieving the poor beast of a horrible complaint, similar to the Asthma in man. The public can depend on this work; it is no catchpenny humbug. The articles prescribed by Sir James are all cheap and can be had at any store. To prevent imposition the work will be sent in sealed envelopes. English price four shillings and three pence sterling—American price, $1 per copy. Persons ordering Sir James' Work, are expected to confine his instructions to their own animals.—It will be sent to none others.
